Introduction: What are clinical trials?

Quite simply, a clinical trial is a very carefully structured study that evaluates the effectiveness of a drug against a specific disease or condition. Clinical trials can focus on a new drug or they may be used to determine new uses for existing medications.

When a promising new medication is identified, the drug undergoes careful evaluation for safety and effectiveness through the clinical trial process. Typically, the doctors chosen to conduct clinical trials are experts within their medical specialties. The pharmaceutical or biotechnology company that is sponsoring the trial reports their findings to the U.S. Food and Drug Administration (FDA). The FDA reviews those findings and if they determine that the drug is both effective and safe to use, then they will make the Phase III. In Phase III trials, the safety and effectiveness of an investigational treatment are studied in larger populations of people for whom the drug is intended. Typically, there are hundreds or thousands of people in a Phase III trial. Often, the investigational treatment is compared with standard treatments in hopes of finding better ways to help people. The pharmaceutical or biotechnology company that is sponsoring the trial reports the findings from Phase III trials to the U.S. Food and Drug Administration (FDA).

Phase IV. Phase IV trials are also called post-marketing trials. Only after the FDA has determined that the medicine is both safe to use and equivalent or superior to existing therapies is it then made available for broader use by physicians and their patients. Phase IV trials take place after a drug has been approved. Findings from Phase IV trials provide additional information about the safety and efficacy of the drug.

How are participant's rights and safety protected during a clinical trial?

The FDA is the government agency that develops policies and guidelines that protect the rights, safety, and well-being of people involved in clinical research. The rights and safety of people participating in clinical trials are also protected by an Institutional Review Board and by an informed consent form. An Institutional Review Board (IRB) is comprised of both physicians and lay people for the purpose of studying the design of the trial and ensuring that participant's rights are maintained. The informed consent form explains the clinical trial and outlines a participant's rights. You should always be given an informed consent form prior to enrolling in any clinical trial.

Who pays for clinical trials?

- Sponsors fund clinical trials. This funding can come from the federal government via the National Institutes of Health (NIH) or directly from pharmaceutical and biotech companies.
- The clinical trial sponsor contracts with specialized physicians and/or researchers to administrate the trial. Settings for the trials could range from the physician's office to a hospital or research facility. Reimbursement for this service is typically paid out on a per-patient basis.
- Sponsors may pay you to participate in a clinical trial. Typically, these fees, when provided, are nominal.
- Medical care is often provided at no cost to the patients, but they still may be responsible for other expenses such as travel between their homes and the healthcare facility.

Patients may also have to pay for some medical procedures, tests, or hospital stays if these are considered a part of standard treatment and not part of the clinical trial. Before you enroll, you should determine exactly who pays for what services.

Where can you get more information about clinical trials?

If you or someone you know has a medical problem and is thinking about taking part in a clinical trial, speak to your healthcare provider first. In taking an active role in the management of your health, you may want to work closely with your provider to find out if a particular clinical trial is right for you.

Back to top

Questions you need to ask.

- What is the length of your involvement in the clinical trial? How long will the trial last?
- Where will you have to go in order to participate in the clinical trial?
- What are the possible treatments you may receive while in the clinical trial?
- Do the treatment alternatives they provide cover all possible treatments for this disease? If not, what are your other treatment alternatives?
- What procedures are built into the study to keep you safe from harm while you are participating?
- What are the risks and benefits of participating in the clinical trial?
- If there are risks, what will happen should you have an adverse reaction to the treatment in the study?
- What costs may you incur if you participate?
- Will the treatment be available to you even after the clinical trial has concluded?
- Where are the funds coming from to conduct this trial? What is their purpose in sponsoring the trial?

You should also feel free to ask any other question about the trial you want answered.

Common terms used in clinical trials.

Clinical trial: A clinical trial - also called a clinical study or clinical research - is a way to evaluate the safety and benefits of a new drug in a carefully controlled setting. The new drug is tested in people who volunteer to participate in the trial.

Clinical investigator: A clinical investigator is a doctor or scientist who is responsible for carrying out the planned research activities for a clinical trial. Typically, the doctors chosen for these clinical activities are experts within their medical specialties.

Coordinator: A coordinator is a person (usually a nurse or other medical professional) who is responsible for organizing the planned clinical research activities for a trial. The coordinator is also responsible for taking care of important study documents.

Food and Drug Administration: The Food and Drug Administration is often referred to as the FDA. The FDA is a government agency that develops policies and guidelines that protect the rights, safety, and well-being of people involved in clinical research. The FDA also enforces the laws that govern the approval, regulation and monitoring of drugs and medical devices.

Informed consent: Informed consent is a process that confirms a patient understands the nature of the study, the risks involved, and the expected benefits of treatment. A written and dated form called the "informed consent form" is signed by a patient to document this process.

Institutional Review Board: An Institutional Review Board is usually referred to as the "IRB." The IRB is a group of medical, scientific, and nonscientific people that are responsible for reviewing and approving the planned clinical activities of a study. The group ensures the protection of the rights, safety, and well-being of patients who volunteer for clinical trials.

Investigational treatment: Investigational treatment is another term for the drug, treatment, or medical device that is studied in a clinical trial.

Principal investigator: The principal investigator is the doctor or researcher who is put in charge of all clinical activities at a particular study location and who supervises the care of patients in the study.

Protocol: A protocol is a plan that contains guidelines for a clinical study. The pharmaceutical or biotechnology company that discovered the investigational treatment usually develops the protocol.

Sponsor: The sponsor is the organization that funds a clinical trial and that develops a plan for the research. The organizations can be a pharmaceutical or biotech company, a research institution, or other health organization.

Welcome to Clinical Trials

When a promising new medication is identified, careful evaluation of the safety and effectiveness of the drug then occurs in the clinical trials process. Typically, the doctors chosen to conduct clinical trials are experts within their medical specialties. Findings from the clinical trials are reported by the pharmaceutical or biotechnology company that is sponsoring the clinical trial to the US Food and Drug Administration — the FDA. Only after the FDA has determined from reviewing the findings from clinical trials that the medicine is both safe to use and effective is it then made available for broader use by doctors and their patients.

Doctors conducting clinical trials frequently ask their patients if they are interested in volunteering to participate in a clinical trial. Each trial has different requirements for how it is conducted, such as conditions for patient eligibility, length of the study, dosage of the study drug, and types of medical procedures, to name a few. If you are interested in participating in a clinical trial, it is very important that you review these requirements with the doctor conducting the clinical trial to ensure your eligibility and to determine the potential benefits and risks from the trial.

If you are looking for information on where clinical trials are taking place and the types of trials that are available, you can search our clinical trials listing. If you want to learn more about clinical trials, please see our About Clinical Trials page. These are the first steps in learning about clinical trials and in deciding how medical research on clinical trials and in deciding how medical research on possible treatments for tomorrow may help you today.

About Clinical Trials will provide you with more information.

Clinical Trial Questions Step 4 of 5

Earlier in the registration process, you expressed interest in clinical trial opportunities. When you are screened for a clinical trial, the doctor at the trial site needs to know more information about your health and the medical condition(s) for which you have been diagnosed. Your answers to the following questions may help determine if you may potentially qualify for a specific clinical trial.

Listed below are the conditions you selected earlier in the questionnaire. After you answer questions about each condition, a check mark will appear to the right. Your information will be saved after you complete each section. If you are unable to complete these at this time, we will ask you to update your profile the next time you login to acurion.com

Welcome to My Library

Here's your chance to create a library of your very own. My Library is where you can store all kinds of information found throughout the site. Whether it's clinical trial information, abstracts on news articles, drug information, perspectives from our medical experts or personal stories, links to the items you select will be saved in this area for as long as you choose to keep them there. All you have to do is click the "Save to My Library" button found throughout the site.

In addition, you can type in personal notes along with the items you save. We will not access, use, or review your personal notes for any reason.

If you'd like to go directly to one of the five sections, select a link below:

The purpose of this medical research study is to evaluate the effect of an investigational drug on the ability to reason, remember, imagine, and learn in humans who have already been diagnosed with mild to moderate probable Alzheimer's Disease. You must live with a caregiver or receive daily visits from a responsible caregiver. The caregiver must be familiar with your recent medical history and be willing to come to 7 doctor visits for a period of 6 months.

After these questions are answered we may be able to refer you to a research site for further screening. After the site reviews your responses to the screening questions, a nurse or other person at the research facility will be calling you. At that time, it will be determined if a first visit should be scheduled to determine whether this study is appropriate for you.

SCREEN #3: PATIENT POTENTIALLY ELIGIBLE FOR STUDY:

Based on your responses, you may be eligible for the clinical study. We will forward this information to the research site you selected. The research site will contact you shortly to ask you further questions about your health, and possibly to schedule an appointment for the first visit. In the meantime, we will send you a Welcome Kit that contains information about the study. If the site does not contact you within 5 – 7 business days, please feel free to call the number that will be included in your mailed materials.

In the event that you do not participate in this particular study, may we have your permission to contact you in the future about other studies?

- ☐ Yes, contact me
- ☐ No, I do not want to be contacted
